

Woodstock Club

A TRADITION OF MEMORIES

WELCOME TO WOODSTOCK CLUB

Thank you for your interest in Woodstock Club, a special place in the heart of Indianapolis with a rich tradition of building memories for nearly a century.

HISTORY

I value the rich social, cultural and architectural history of Woodstock as well as its traditions of family, excellence, and sophisticated elegance.

Jim Fadely

Woodstock Club was founded on 01 June 1915, but its roots date back to 1891 as the site of Indianapolis's original country club.

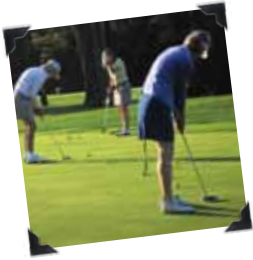

Since its founding, Woodstock Club has been at the nexus of Indianapolis's civic and social activity—for professionals and families alike. The club has always been a beautiful haven for recreation and an elegant venue for life's celebrations and gatherings for friends and family. Superior service, personal attention and the exquisite amenities make the Woodstock experience truly enduring.

Whether it is enjoying the fine dining, golf, tennis, swimming or any of the many special events and celebrations, Woodstock is dedicated to ensuring that every member feels at home and receives an unparalleled level of quality and service.

GOLF

The course is a treasure, one that has eluded many that underestimate it. Woodstock's golf program has inspired many golfers I know to passionately pursue the game.

Kevin Martin

In 1897, Woodstock Club's original golf course became one of the first nine-hole courses west of the Appalachians.

Today, the Tom Bendelow-designed nine-hole course boasts flat, original greens, a PGA professional staff and devilish par fours. The bent-grass course is heavily lined with mature trees and meticulously maintained with pride and professionalism.

Men's, women's and couples' events contribute to the golfing fun, and an active junior golf program ensures the golfing tradition of Woodstock Club will live long into the future.

TENNIS

We love playing tennis at Woodstock because of the superbly maintained Har-Tru courts, the beautiful setting and the convivial group of players.

Betsy and Casey Cronin

Nearly a century ago, Woodstock Club began building its national reputation as a premier tennis venue. In the 1920s, its seven clay courts became biennial home to the Western Open. In 1969, it was appointed host to the U.S. Clay Court Championships.

In 1972, Woodstock introduced paddle (platform) tennis to the city. Today, eight clay tennis courts, two aluminum paddle tennis courts, a warming hut and tennis house reflect the enduring tradition of tennis—both recreational and competitive—at Woodstock.

SWIMMING

Our boys look forward to participating with their friends on Woodstock's swim team each summer. The swim meets are relaxing occasions where moms and dads gather to cheer on the swimmers and to socialize on sunny afternoons.

Carolyn Anker

In 1927, the first pool at Woodstock Club opened amid formal terraces, making it the perfect classically styled setting for a nighttime exhibition by eight Olympic swimmers in 1929.

Today, the scene is both more relaxed and more robust, with three pools: one for tykes and toddlers, another for youthful rough and tumble, and a large sparkling one bringing everyone together for exercise and activity. The club's storied swimming program helps children master skills and learn sportsmanship through active interclub rivalry. Adults swim fitness laps, and the generations leisurely mingle poolside.

DINING

Woodstock is the perfect place for a special occasion or for a simple Friday dinner with friends. The food is delicious; the prices are reasonable; and the staff makes me feel welcome.

Ken Turchi

Woodstock Club has long been celebrated for its tradition of excellence in dining and top-tier chefs.

Superior cuisine and service are the order of the day whether members choose the refined Club or River Rooms, the more casual Woodstock Room, or even poolside dining served from the snack bar. A dedication to creating memorable meals and a commitment to providing a comfortable and intimate atmosphere with personal service are only a few reasons why members of Woodstock look forward to the changing, seasonal menus and special dinners at the club.

YOUTH

The fun doesn't happen just in the summer. Woodstock's Easter, Fourth of July, Halloween and Christmas parties are not-to-be-missed family events. With movie nights and bingo all through the year, what kid wouldn't love it here!?

Kelly Wessel

From its inception, Woodstock Club embraced children and families, with an early president proclaiming the club "a center of social activity for young people."

Today, that family-friendly quality continues, echoing through the annual Independence Day celebration where games and competitions, a picnic dinner on the lawn, music and fireworks, even skydivers, lend a refined carnival atmosphere. It resonates in the kids and dads campout and the traditional Faerie Queen Ball. Woodstock nurtures young people, promoting healthy outdoor pursuits, cultivating all things gracious and providing a secure retreat.

SPECIAL EVENTS

I really enjoy hosting private and business dinners and parties at Woodstock. The all-star management team ensures well-executed occasions, both beautiful and novel. Importantly, I trust them with the details so I can enjoy my guests. It is my home away from home.

Ellen Crabb

Woodstock Club has become the home for family holiday memories.

With family-centered special events, such as holiday parties and monthly birthday parties for members, Woodstock has become the backdrop for members' happiest occasions. The club's splendid setting, superb attention to detail and rich tradition of memories make it the perfect place for weddings and just about every other milestone in life worth celebrating.
